

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Hey, Kristen, Jenna and CJ...I was just fooling with ya. Did you really think I would only bring you a tiny tree and three tiny presents?

Your mom and dad tell me that you are the greatest kids in the whole wide world and...heck, you know you should never argue with your mom and your dad is always right, right?

OK, not always. But he thinks he is, so let's humor him.

Anyway, there is one present for you that I wasn't able to put on the sleigh because it was too heavy and Rudolph pulled a groin muscle. I've included a picture of it inside this envelope. Some friends of mine who live in Las Vegas will bring it out to your house next week and set it up for you.

Again, Merry Christmas....and I hope my little prank didn't upset you too much! Eat your veggies, do your times tables every day on Math-U-See, keep working on your spelling...oops, I mean "spelling"...read lots of book...and, oh yeah, don't forget to play a lot and have lots of fun NO MATTER WHAT YOUR FATHER SAYS!

Ho, ho, ho!!! I would say "See you next year," but as my friend John Cena likes to say, "You...can't...see...me!"

Your friend,

Santa
